No. 28. Baked Sweetbreads.

Despite the fact that Lenore Ulrich is high up in the mountains appearing in some scenes for her next photoplay, "The Conflict," it is no difficult matter for me to name her favorite meat dish. Lenore and I have often had little dinner parties together and I therefore know that there is nothing she enjoys more than a plate of baked sweetbreads. I accordingly give you the following:

Place three large sweethreads into warm water to draw out the Allow them to remain there for an hour and then place them into boiling water. Let them simmer for about ten minutes; this makes them firm. Drain off the water and brush over them the yolk of an egg. Sprinkle with bread crumbs, dip in egg again and then cover them once more with bread crumbs. Drop on them a little oiled butter and place sweethreads into a moderately heated oven. Allow them to bake for about three quarters of an hour. Toast three pieces of bread; place the sweetbreads on the toast and pour round (not over) them a good brown gravy.

Beefsteak Pie.

When you see the restaurant scene in Edna Goodrich's no photoplay, "The House of watch carefully Miss Goods lips as she gives her order to the waiter. You will not have to be an expert lip reader to learn that beef steak pie is her choice. After the scene was taken I inquired as to whether this particular item was named at random or whether it was from force of habit. "Decidedly the latter," replied she with her famous smile, hence the following: Cut into small slices a piece of beef, rump or sirloin; slice also a little raw ham; place both in a frying-pan, with some butter and small quantity of chopped onions. Let them simmer together a short time on the fire and add a little flour together with enough stock to make sauce. Season with salt, pepper, chopped parsley and a lit-Worcestershire sauce. Add a few sliced potatoes and cook together for about twenty minutes; put this into a pie-dish, with a few slices of hard-boiled eggs on the top and cover with a layer of biscuit dough. Bake from lifteen to twenty minutes in bot oven.

Just as Edna Goodrich ordered beetsteak pie in the estaurant Winifred scene at the studio, Kingston, who was standing with me watching the proceedings whispered with a smile, "Make mine the same," from which I de duced that this popular little lady was another enthusiast of the dish-I later found this to be the case so here we have two prominent people in the same studio, both loyers of this particular culinary once, its sincerity-all its inconsts- 1965; W. will be obliged to length:
